Art Unit: 3731

Claims 28-31 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on June 28, 2007.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5, 7-19, 21-27, 32-36, 38 and 39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Bates et al.

Art Unit: 3731

(2003/0028244). Bates et al. disclose a stent ([0040]) formed of a plurality of struts of bioresorbable material ([0044]), openings 28 and a beneficial agent matrix (layer 20 which is, to some extent, within the openings 28 as seen in figure 9 since the openings 28 are formed by the struts and the struts are considered to be the combination of members 14 with coating 16 thereon), the beneficial agent matrix (noting that layer 20 is a beneficial agent matrix since it contains or surrounds a therapeutic agent as defined in [0026] of applicant's specification) comprising a bioresorbable matrix material ([0063]). Alternatively, it would have been obvious that layer 20 is, to some extent, within the openings 28 for the reasons set forth above. As to claims 3 and 8, for example, the patentability of a product does not depend on its method of production.

Claims 6, 20 and 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bates et al. (2003/0028244). Bates et al. fail to disclose the material of the stent as being a bioresorbable metal alloy. However, it is old and well known in the art to use a metal alloy as the bioresorbable material for a stent as admitted by applicant in [0035] of applicant's specification. This material has the advantage of being strong and yet bioresorbable. It would have been obvious to make the Bates et al. stent of this material so that it too would have this advantage.
